

For your home

Technology (Chromebook / iPad for example) is a powerful tool for learning, and we are excited about the possibilities for our students. While they are on campus, we have the AUP (Acceptable Use Policy) and the Digital Citizenship Agreement to help guide and protect our students.

We know you want the same at home; to that end, we recommend creating a family Home Acceptable Use Plan (HAUP) with your child. To help in this, we are offering a framework of a HAUP from which you can begin a discussion and customize your own plan.

Decide together on:

- Family approved Apps
- Times and places for Technology (Chromebook / iPad) usage
- General principles of online integrity
- How to be safe, balanced, and accountable
- Specific expectations for social use
- How to respond to harmful content/messages
- How to give proper attribution (identifying the source or author of written material) and respect
- When and how purchases can be made

Recommendations (as you design your HAUP)

Demonstrate

- That you are not afraid of the technology (Chromebook / iPad) – use it with your child
- An interest in your child's online work and presence
- An attitude of love and caring concern for your child's online activity

Communicate

- A vision for what responsibility and good use of the Chromebook / iPad looks like
- A plan for accountability and random checks of the technology
- Boundaries, if the technology should stay in shared spaces (not behind closed doors), for example.

People 	Who can/should know my passwords? What social media may I have at home? When should a parent or guardian check my Chromebook / iPad? What will I do if I see harmful, inappropriate, uncomfortable communication or images? Who may use my device at home? Siblings?
Misc. 	What are some fair consequences if I break the rules in the HAUP? What other things might we do to keep me using technology in responsible ways (and to avoid negative uses)?

This chart is provided for families as a sample agreement that may help to guide expectations of your child's use of technology at home. Some families may choose to complete the HAUP and have their child sign it. THIS FORM IS FOR HOME USE ONLY AND SHOULD NOT BE RETURNED TO SCHOOL.
